The town was named after the legendary rebel Inca General Ollantay. Both the design and foundations of most of the buildings date back to the original constructions (Ilaqta) of the Inca Empire. The streets still have their Inca names from the time when the town was a strategic military, religious and agricultural center. Some of the town's most salient characteristics are its cobbled streets, canals and a church dedicated to the Apostle Santiago, built in 1620. In the upper reaches of the town there is an impressive Ceremonial Center built for the worship of water, and a fortress that guarded the lower section of the valley, protecting it from possible invasions by warring jungle tribes (called Antis). The archaeological site is also made up of a series of superimposed terraces, reached by a steep staircase. The ruins feature finely carved, vast stone blocks that make up the upper terrace or Temple of the Sun. Lunch at Tunupa Restaurant  Sonesta Posada del Inca Yucay 2 nights	B, L

After market you will drive up the mountain to the Inca citadel of Pisac, a mountain-top fortress guarding the north end of the valley and offering magnificent views of the surrounding countryside. There is some hiking required to actually get to the citadel. The ruins include temples, watchtowers, and the largest collection of Incan farming terraces scaling the mountainside. You will enjoy lunch, at a boutique hotel and restaurant near the village of Pisac in the valley, and then return to your hotel. Lunch at Urubamba Boutique Rest (close Pisac)	B, L
